MEDICAL AND HEALTH WORK IN MINORITY NATIONALITY AREAS OF NORTHWEST, SOUTHWEST, AND CENTRAL-SOUTH CHIMA IN 1951

Reports submitted to the second plenary session of the Commission of the Affairs of Nationalities, held 14 - 31 December 1951, showed the progress made in the health and medical programs of the minority nationality areas. The reports attributed the success of the programs to medical teams and financial assistance of the Central People's government. These reports, made by the chairmen of the Mationalities Affairs Committees of the Northwest, Southwest, and Central-South China Military Administrative Committees, were published in the Peiping Jen-min Jih-pao 16 - 16 Feorusary 1952.

The following are summaries of these reports.

NORTHWEST CHINA

The Peiping Jen-min Jih-pao of 10 February 1952 carried the report submitted by Wang Feng, chairman of the Nationalities Affairs Committee of the Northwest China Military and Administrative Committee. This report disclosed that 286 health and trade /consumer's goods/ offices had been established in Sinkiang, Xansu, Ningsia, and Tsinghai Emphasizing that mobile teams were also the political propagandiets and organizers for the Communist Party and the Central People's Government, the report went on to say:

"After the liberation, the Central People's Government and the North-west China Military and Administrative Committee appropriated special medical funds, equivalent in value to 18,142,165 catties of miller, and donated a large supply of medical supplies valued at approximately 4 million catties of wheat. For the promotion of trade and medical service among the milority nationalities, 286 health and trade offices and specialized agencies were established in Sinkiang, Kansu, Mingsia, and Tsinghai. In addition to health centers and stations, mobile trade teams and traveling medical teams penetrated agricultural and livestock farming areas to carry on their work. Government and all the health agencies of various levels in the Northwest treated nearly 450,000 members of minority nationality groups from October 1950 to June 1951. They also vaccinated 200,000 people against smallpox and innoculated 108,000 people against other diseases.

"Trade and medical teams not only have their specific functions to perform, but they are also the political propagandists, organizers, and the political working teams for the Communist Party and the Central People's Government. For instance, the Tu-lan Hsien, in Tsinghai, the mobile trading team organized by the Tu-lan Branch of the State Trading Company not only completed its trade activities in Chu-ma-lai, but also it publicized the minority nationality policy, the tax collection policy, and the Resist America, Aid Korea ideology which elevated the political consciousness of the masses.

"Sometimes work among the minority nationalities requires individual trade and medical teams to assume dual functions. Therefore, while a trade team sells its merchandise, it should be ready to treat the sick; and while it conducts propaganda, it should be prepared to organize politically the minority nationalities. This is a very good way to launch mass work in nomadic livestock-farming areas. However, the political cadres have not emphasized the successful experiences of the above type of work, and, therefore, the strength of these mobile trade and medical teams has not been fully utilized to promote this kind of activity. Hereafter, under the united leadership of all levels of the people's governments and agencies concerned, all available public and private resources must be coordinated to further this work."

SOUTHWEST CHINA

The Perping Jen-min Jih-pao, on 11 Pennuary 1952, carried important parts of the report of Wang Wei-chou, chairman of the Nationalities Affairs Committee of the Southwest China Military and Administrative Committee in which the following highlights of the medical and health work were given:

"More than 160 health centers and stations have been restored or established in all the minority nationality areas and 29 mobile medical teams have been organized. These medical teams have provided medical treatment to the masses gratis or at reduced fees. The Tibetan Autonomous Region in Sikang, with the support of the Central People's Government, eliminated rinderpest which had infected an area of 2,000 li in circumference and treated or examined 20,000 head of cattle and horses as a preventive measure sgainst epizootic diseases."

CENTRAL-SOUTE CHINA

Only a very sketchy review on the progress of medical and health work among the minority nationalities in the Central-South China region was incorporated in the report of Chang Chih-i, chairman of the Nationalities Affairs Committee of the Central-South China Military and Administrative Committee.

Pertinent portions of Chang a report published in the Peiping Jen-min Jih-pao on 18 February 1952, regarding health and medical work said:

"In the field of health work, organs have been established, and medical treatment teams have been sent out to the field while epidemic prevention teams have tarried on their work in the minority nationality areas. Some localities
